Palpatory Anatomy of the Belly – Pelvis
& Applications to the Pelvis

Marty Ryan

London ~ 19 – 21 February 2010

PALPATORY ANATOMY OF THE BELLY – PELVIS The 1st day of this 3-day training focuses on the palpatory experience of the pelvic bowl organs and the bony pelvis. Learn to palpate the pelvis 360 degrees - including the pelvic organs, fascial architecture, and pelvic floor. Skillfully locate kidneys and bladder, large intestine, prostate, uterus, and ovaries. Learn to intelligently discuss the normal physiology of this region.

APPLICATIONS TO THE PELVIS (days 2 and 3) Put your palpation skills to work by learning effective manual treatments for the pelvic organs, coccyx, and pelvic floor. Hands-on work will address core relationships between pelvic organs and low back pain, pelvic pain, elimination challenges, pelvic congestion, prolapse, and infertility.

Marty is a passionate belly massage practitioner and instructor. He is founder and director of Love Your Guts Seminars - and has taught belly massage and palpatory anatomy seminars across the US since 1998. Marty also assists Leon Chaitow's manual therapy seminars in the US, and Gil Hedley's Somanautics workshops in the US and the UK.

Love Your Guts Seminars is a bodywork education company dedicated to bringing the world of the abdomen and viscera into a whole new light. We utilise high impact learning strategies to integrate whole body systems physiology and visceral anatomy information into a thoughtful and effective approach to belly massage. All seminars are presented with joy, laughter, gratitude, studiousness, clarity and most of all FUN! We invite everyone to truly Love Your Guts!
